

Angelica Romero, Assoc. AIA

About Angelica Romero

Angélica is an emerging professional that graduated Cum Laude with a Bachelors of Architecture from Florida Atlantic University in 2010. She has work in the architecture field in South Florida since graduation. Moved to Tampa on September 2017 and is currently working at Alfonso Architects. She was actively involved in the AIA Miami chapter for four years and served two years as Associate Director. Angélica also served as the co-chair of the Young Architect Forum where she participated in organizing ARE study sessions, monthly office crawls focusing on increasing interest, participation and awareness of young professionals. She received the AIA Miami associate of the year award in 2017. This award is given to recognize outstanding leaders and creative thinkers for significant contributions to their communities and the architecture profession. Currently she is serving as the East Director for the AIA Tampa Bay and as a co-chair of the Women In Architecture Tampa Bay and focusing her efforts on community organizations such as the Tiny Homes for Veterans and their collaboration with the USF school of architecture SACD.